NOW ADD SOME FLAVOUR... After securing these specs, it's what feels right to you that should decide all the rest. Things like colour, brand, slimness, weight, etc. On the next page, we've made a few suggestions which you may want to look at.

$7 = 2x + 1$
 $6 = 2x$
 $3 = x$

It's what's on the ~~inside~~ that counts.

outside

It is very important your computer has the good stuff inside, however, a careful decision regarding the build could boost your student-abilities ten-fold. With the right machine you could use a stylus pen and draw directly onto the screen.

Like this! A feature that would be very handy when drawing diagrams, sketching, etc!

The following computers have ample power, however, have fundamental differences in their construction. These differences will dictate the way you interact with the computer in the classroom environment. Take the time to learn these different form factors and give them a try in your local computer stores.

Type	2-in1 Laptop	Laptop Convertible	Tablet	Standard Laptop

The Gist	A touch laptop which has a screen which can be "undocked" to become a tablet to write on with a stylus pen.	A touch laptop which you can use in tent, stand, tablet, and of course laptop mode.	Primarily a tablet with stylus pen, which has the ability to dock a magnetic keyboard.	The standard laptop which has served us well for years.
